Choose and Cut Your own fresh Christmas Tree A Georgia Tradition

Find a tree farm near you. Tree farms are scattered all over the state of Georgia. Search this brochure or go to www.gacta.com and view the Farm Finder map showing the farm locations.

Christmas Trees and the Environment: The Real Christmas tree is a renewable resource that cleans the air by using carbon dioxide to grow and reintroducing oxygen into the air. The young trees growing on the Christmas tree farm for only a few years will provide clean air, erosion control, and habitat for wildlife. The tree can be recycled. It is best to chip for mulch to be used in gardens or farms. Most local communities provide a recycle service drop off location where the tree can be turned in after Christmas and chipped for mulch. Many of the communities will give this mulch to homeowners to use in their gardens. The Christmas tree farm will replant the field with new trees after the older ones are cut. This keeps a supply of young trees growing in fields that are normally not good for other crops.

Some things to remember when buying your tree: Many people pick a tree that is too big for the space in their home. The trees in the field look smaller than they will in the home. Go by the size as measured. Ceilings in most homes are 8-9 feet high. It doesn't make good sense to buy a tree that is 11 feet tall to fit into this space. You will ruin the shape of the tree by trimming the top or bottom to fit the room. Make sure the handle or base of the tree is long enough to fit your stand. Some stands require very little handle while others require up to a foot.

Other things offered by Tree Farms: Most of the farms listed offer high quality tree stands and many have complete gift shops for you to browse. Some offer hay rides, petting zoos and other attractions. Santa shows up at some of the farms to meet the kids.

Varieties of trees: Leyland Cypress is the Christmas tree that will not drop needles. They come in are several varieties including: Leighton Green, Murray, Naylor's Blue, Silver Dust and Castlewellan Gold Some say these trees are hard to decorate. The limbs are not as strong as other varieties, so light weight ornaments and lights should be used. Murray and Naylor's Blue have slightly stronger limbs. Leyland cypress have very little tree smell. Carolina Sapphire, Blue Ice, and other Arizona Cypress have a stronger tree smell, but they will dry out sooner than Leyland or pine.

Virginia pine and White Pine are the standby Southern Christmas tree. Virginia pine is a short needle with stiff branches and a strong pine smell. White Pine has a long needle with softer branches and a softer pine smell. Both make a beautiful Christmas tree.

Red Cedar is the old time Georgia Christmas tree. It has a strong pleasant cedar smell and a good shape. The limbs are not strong and will dry out sooner than other varieties. Red Cedar should not be cut more than two weeks before Christmas.

Trees For Troops

The Christmas Spirit Foundation and FedEx Corp. Delivered 19,200 Real Christmas trees to military families last year. Trees were donated by over 700 farms and delivered to 65 military bases in the USA and overseas.
